SWIFT PRODUCE REVIEW

Demand for creamery butter has been so good that even though production is probably heavier at the present time than ever before known, stocks have kept well sold to dealers wanting butter for current use and for storage purposes.

Under present fine pasture conditions, prospects are for good production to continue for some little time.

Marketing of live hens in producing sections has been extremely heavy for the last ten days, indicating that the number of hens on farms is large, and now that the laying season is about at an end, these fowls are being sent to market.

Demand for fresh dressed poultry also is good and even though the marketing of fowl should continue heavy, indications are for about present values to be maintained.

The movement of eggs at this time of year is normal, but with changing weather conditions, the demand is now for eggs from more northern sections.

The government report of reserved stock of eggs in storage shows June 1st, this year 7,936,000 cases, as against 6,844,000 cases same time last year or a surplus of about 20 per cent. Under these conditions, it would look as though prices for the next few months should be on a reasonable basis to keep eggs going into consumption rather than sending them to storage.

The Kentucky Geological Survey receives $40,500 a year from the state. In addition the United States government appropriates $25,000 a year to aid the survey.

NOW'S THE TIME TO TALK TO MARS, IF EVER

(By Associated Press)

St. Louis, June 10—Today is the best time to communicate with Mars as the planet is nearer earth than it has been since 1909, being 42,300,000 miles away, according to the Rev. Father Martin S. Brennan, local astronomer, who observed what he termed the "opposition to Mars."

The "opposition to Mars," he said, caused widespread attraction in this section of the country on recent nights when many persons inquired about "a bright red star in the east." Father Brennan explained that Mars is so near the earth that it outshines the planet Jupiter, this causing Mars to be seen so vividly.

All the scientific world is taking the greatest interest in this opposition to Mars," he continued. "It revives the idea of signaling to that planet."

"Now is the favorable time to get some measure to the fabulous Martians. All kinds of instruments are being equipped in an effort to see the canals of Mars and the polar snows and caps. Some of those who are very enthusiastic are going down a shaft of a mine, using the shaft as a long telescope tube."

"But we are powerless with equipment we now have to bring Mars close enough for us to really see much. Think of the moon—only 250,000 miles away, and Mars over 42,000,000. Even on the moon we could not see the biggest animals in the world, much as we might try. If there were dinosaurs walking around up there, 120 feet long, like those old fellows we hear about, we couldn't see them on the moon."

"There is a limit to our vision because of the waviness of the air, which is heated by convection. We do not see this with the naked eye, but with a thousand diameters magnifying power it looks like running water. Another hindrance is the expansion and contraction of the glass by heat or cold. If something could be invented, instead of glass, that would have the properties of glass, and yet be able to withstand heat and cold, we might bring the heavens closer to us."

The astronomer added that in 1924 Mars will come to the nearest point possible to the earth, when it will recede.

COLORED PREACHER MEETS PECULIAR FATE

As a result of getting a foot caught in a freight train coupling as he attempted to climb between two cars, Rev. John Williams, a colored minister, aged about 60 years, died at a local hospital Sunday. The peculiar accident happened late Saturday night. A long freight train was standing across East Main street and Williams, after waiting a minute or two, climbed between two cars and started across. At that moment, the engine "kicked" the cars back to get a start, and Williams' left foot was caught in the coupling. He was unable to release it and the member was badly mangled and mangled. Some of the train crew soon discovered his plight and he was taken out and rushed to the hospital, where the foot was amputated. Williams is said to have suffered from a weak heart and the shock proved too severe, and he died shortly afterwards.
